

Agenda item 16(b): Workshop 2 – Intelligence “New Routes, New Arrivals” (Sea Ports)

Recommendations

The PIDC Regular Annual Meeting is invited to:

1. note the recent trends in travel movements into Pacific seaports;
 2. note the risks cruise liners and unmonitored vessels bring to the region; and
 3. agree to share information more consistently with PIDC and the membership on new irregular people movement activities in seaports.

1. Purpose

The objectives of this session is to:

- I. discuss the latest movement trends occurring of irregular travellers entering the Pacific through cruise liners, blue boats, fishing vessels and other unmonitored shipping vessels into the Pacific
- II. increase understanding and awareness on the changing trends of people movement; and
- III. recognise the value of sharing information on movement trends in Pacific seaports.

2. Format

At the beginning of the workshop session conference participants (including Observers) are to be divided into 4 groups and are to discuss the risks new shipping routes and arrivals at seaports bring to the region on the basis of the workshop objectives (above). Groups are expected to present findings to the general membership. Presenters will join groups to assist group discussions.

New Routes, New Arrivals: Reflections on new movement trends (Seaports)

Objective: To discuss the latest movement trends of irregular travellers entering the Pacific through our seaports

Guiding Questions:

- i. What are the new movement trends (modus operandi) into the Pacific?
- ii. How can we better monitor the movement of crew and passengers in our seaports?
- iii. Are our monitoring processes and systems of managing our seaports relevant to the changing movement trends of vessels into the Pacific?
- iv. What can we do better?

5. Feedback to Conference (20 minutes)

Recommendation

Members are to discuss case studies of movement trends in seaports across the Pacific and recognise the risks and threats cruise liners, fishing and cargo vessels entering the region from new destinations bring to the region. Members are to consider how they can improve understanding and awareness on new people movement trends in the Pacific.
